First of all "why does San Francisco need more * expanded Electricity?" A drive along Highway 80 approaching the Bay Bridge or flying over at night will tell you that it does not use this commodity wisely.

Negative issues are listed as:

- Health issues from higher Electric & Magnetic Field emissions - The San Mateo Highlands has a sub-station near Laurel Hill Drive already.
- A negative impact on our beautiful view - also from noisier current constantly bombarding our neighborhoods.
- The impact on property value - concern about safety & health issues - interference with electrical equipment coming from higher EMF emissions.
- Please consider the real or not real necessity of S.F.

At least place them West of 280 - or on the West side of the lake. Or better still, find a way to bury them - where the over
