I've been reading very confusing information about a proposed powerline and transmission line coming through the Pensaquitos area. When I've tried to verify the information online, it is difficult for me to wade through the verbage to the facts. Yet, it seems, it is important for residents to weigh in their opinions. So, here's mine: I think the best plan for a transmission line would use area that is already impacted with high voltage line and towers, rather than a route that would take it next to schools and homes or a route that would impact wild habitat, like Pensaquitos Canyon. I've heard that one proposal would route it along Park Village road, right in front of the elementary school and park and down the only road that allows traffic in and out of Park Village. This route is a particularly bad idea.

I wish this process were easier for the public to understand.

Sincerely,
